Winter Term : Teacher, Charles R. Rowe. Wages per month, $25.00. Length of school, ten weeks. Number of pupils, twenty-one. Average attendance, eighteen.

Mr. Rowe is a thorough teacher, and the school at its close illustrated the benefit of thorough practical instruction.

Amount of money, $165.43. Summer Term : Teacher, Miss Annie M. Greene. Wages per month, $26.00. Length of school, twelve weeks. Number of pupils, forty-four. Average attendance, thirty-five.

Winter Term : Teacher, Miss Martha J. Morrill. Wages per month, $24.00. Length of school, fourteen weeks. Number of pupils, forty-four. Average attendance, thirty-four.

The familiarity of the scholars with the studies pursued during the term, gave ample evidence that their instruction had not been superficial. The teacher's aim was not only to have scholars commit, but to understand. A class in the Fourth Reader, also one in Colburn's Arithmetic, deserves special mention.

DISTRICT No. TEN.

Amount of school money, $101.67. Summer Term : Teacher, Miss Bessie Robinson. Wages per month, $16.00. Length of school, twelve weeks. Number of pupils, nine. Average attendance, six.

During the past year this district has built a new and pleasant school-house, which is a decided improvement over the old and uncomfortable one formerly occupied. Without doubt, the advantage of this change will soon be apparent in the increased prosperity and progress of the school.

The number of visits made by members of the district during the term, indicates a commendable interest in the school.

DISTRICT No. TWELVE.

Amount of money, $66.64. Summer Term : Teacher, Miss Clara A. Rowe. Wages per month, $18.00. Length of school, six weeks. Number of pupils, thirteen. Average attendance, twelve.
